PLAYING IN THE SHADOW OF DEATH: THE TRAGEDIES OF THE MCCLURE CHILDREN

By Carol (Hunt) Uhal

The family seldom talked about the oldest children of my great-uncle, Stephen Verlile McClure Sr. (1895–1960), who was the older brother of my grandmother, Birdie (McClure) Russel. Most of the family never knew they had existed. Consequently, there were no stories about shared birthday parties, picnics on the beach, family reunions, or remembrances of past Christmases. The children perished so young that there just weren't many stories to tell. Additionally, family members who did know about the children probably refrained from talking about them because of the pain it would likely cause Uncle Steve and his wife, Mary Elizabeth (Earl) McClure (1904–1960).

My first knowledge of the tragedy came when walking through Lakeside Cemetery in Port Huron, Michigan about 1958 with my mother, Ann (Russel) Hunt. We visited the graves of my mother's grandparents and then my mother said that she wanted to show me something. As we walked a short distance, I noticed five small, straight, gray headstones, perfectly aligned, and facing east toward Lake Huron. I was struck by the fact that the tombstones were identical, so I suggested to my mother that we go look at them. My mother replied, "That's where we're going; those are your cousins."

Naturally, I was shocked. Dead cousins? This can't be right. My mother then told me that the children had been "gassed". Given that I was only about 12 years old, I was too stunned to ask any questions. Being so young, I was also too self-absorbed to think about the tragedy for long. But I didn't forget it. By the time I started to ask about it, my mother had already passed away. But I had aunts who would be able to provide answers as to what happened to the children.

At a McClure family reunion, I asked my aunt, Betty (Russel) Bassett, about the children and she told me that they died in an automobile accident. This was quite confusing as I'm sure both my Aunt Betty and my mother would know the difference between being gassed and being in a car accident. But I didn't pursue it. Several years went by before I asked another of my aunts, Wilma (Russel) Lepien, what happened to the children. I explained to her that my mother and Aunt Betty had given me two very different accounts of how the children died. She straightened it out for me: both accounts were correct. Some of the children were gassed; others died in a car accident.

A Truism about Genealogy: It Can Take You Places You Might Not Want to Go

It would be several more years before I began researching what happened. Only after I'd acquired some research skills, as a result of a growing interest in genealogy, did I start investigating. Beginning with my second cousin, Janice (Meyers) Moncher, who has researched our McClure line extensively, I learned that she did know about Uncle Steve and Aunt Mary's children being gassed. Like me, she did not know exactly what being "gassed" meant. Was it an explosion and fire, carbon monoxide, a gas leak or some other means? She did know that it happened on New Year's Eve.

After I returned home, Janice sent me a family group sheet for Uncle Steve and Aunt Mary's family compiled by Margaret (Oliver) McClure, the wife of their youngest son. It had all of the information I needed to search for more information about the tragedy. The date, the names, the ages and the burial site of two of the children gassed were listed. In addition, there was a note next to their names in the "Additional Information on Children" section that read "died on New Year's Eve 1931 from gas asphyxiation with four other children."

I looked long and hard at those names and ages. Seeing the names spelled out and thinking of them as real children from a growing young family—part of my family, no less—made me wonder if I really wanted to find out more.

Cemetery Records Take the Research to the Next Level

Ultimately unable to resist my fascination with learning more about the asphyxiation of six children, I decided to continue researching. My next step was to visit the online site of Lakeside Cemetery. Entering the name McClure provided solid information that would allow me to do further in-depth research. The records showed there were 12 people buried in Lot 356, owned by Stephen McClure. By using the burial date of January 3, 1932, I could identify the six children who were victims of gas asphyxiation. Two of the children had the last name of McClure; two had the last name of Stein, and two had the last name of Earl. I knew from the family group sheet Cousin Janice had given me that Uncle Steve and Aunt Mary had a blended family. Aunt Mary's maiden name was listed as Earl and her first husband was identified as John Stein. I surmised and later verified that the Stein children were Aunt Mary's children from her first marriage. I guessed the Earl children were probably her nieces, but later research would prove that they were her much younger sisters. To keep the names and relationships clear, I drafted a list.

The younger sisters of Mary McClure whom she had taken in to live with her and help with the children.

By now, it had occurred to me that a tragedy of this magnitude would merit newspaper coverage. I tried looking online, but came up with nothing. Obviously if I was serious about getting the whole account of what happened to the children, I needed to visit the St. Clair County Library in Port Huron and look at copies of the Port Huron Times Herald from that timeframe.

Banner Headline Deepens the Impact of the Tragedy

Beginning my search for newspaper coverage with the Times Herald of Friday, January 1, 1932, I settled in comfortably at the microfilm reader. I was expecting to see a column or two about the asphyxiations, possibly on the front page. What I saw shocked me and brought the tragedy home to me on a personal level. The banner front-page headline read: "SIX CHILDREN ASPHYXIATED IN HOME." The subheads read: "4 IN FAMILY VICTIMS OF GAS FUMES" and "Turned on Gas Stove While Parents Were at Work; Discovered by Mother; Resuscitation Failed." The article included photos of three of the children: Rowland McClure, Olive McClure (actually Stein), and a baby picture of Rayfield McClure (actually Stein). Coverage continued in the Times Herald on Saturday, January 2, 1932 and on Monday, January 4, 1932. Taken together the three articles answered many of my questions.

From the coverage, I learned that the children were asphyxiated by gas fumes from the kitchen stove and that all four of the stove burners were turned on by one or more of the children. There was no fire or explosion. According to the Times Herald's initial report, all of the children were found lying in a heap on the living room floor of their small house on St. Paul Avenue in Marysville. Apparently, the children were playing and were overcome by the gas fumes, never realizing the danger. Aunt Mary discovered the six bodies when she returned home at about 5:00 p.m. from her job at Morton Salt Company in Marysville. She entered the house by the back door and was immediately assaulted by a wave of gas. Rushing in, she grabbed Rowland, her youngest child, and went into the backyard screaming for help. Her frantic cries were heard by a neighbor who immediately came running and upon hearing there were more children still in the house went in and began bringing the children out.

Port Huron, Marysville, and Detroit Edison first-aid crews worked on the children for nearly two hours. Martha Earl, the oldest of the children, was still alive when rescue workers arrived and workers valiantly attempted to save her, but neither she nor any of the other children could be revived.

Children to be Buried in Six Little Caskets: Five Will Be Pure White; One Will Be Gray

Funeral arrangements for the six children were announced in the Saturday, January 2, 1932, edition of the Times Herald. Services were scheduled for 2:00 p.m. Sunday in the Albert A. Falk Funeral Home, Port Huron. Several hearses were to be included in the funeral cortege as it traveled to Lakeside Cemetery where burial was to take place.

According to the newspaper reports, more than 2,500 people viewed the remains of the children on Saturday and Sunday and more than 1,500 people attended the funeral service. The final interment at Lakeside Cemetery was viewed by an estimated 2,000 people who stood bareheaded and quiet during the brief committal service.

Some Nagging Questions Remain

Although the Times Herald articles had proved to be a fruitful source of information, I still had questions. What was the location of the house where the deaths occurred? The Times Herald gave the street name but not the number. About what time did the children die? I knew Aunt Mary arrived home about 5:00 p.m., but how long had the children been dead? And the question I was most curious about: Who turned on the gas burners and why?

Answers would come quickly. By now I was familiar with Seeking Michigan [seekingmichigan.org] and the access it provides to death certificates. I looked up the death certificates for the Stein and McClure children. The death certificates listed the place of death as 581 St. Paul Avenue in Marysville, Michigan at about 4:00 p.m. on December 31, 1931. The cause of death was given as "asphyxia by fuel gas" and included the information that "child turned on gas in range." The asphyxiation is listed as accidental. The informant is identified as Mary McClure and the death certificates are signed by Albert A. Falk, St. Clair County Coroner.

A New Source Answers a Final Question: GenDisasters.com

I was doing one of those things people interested in genealogy do just for fun. I "Googled" the phrase "Six Children Asphyxiated by Gas-Marysville, MI." My expectations were low, but I got a "right-on" response. I was directed to a web site called GenDisasters.com which covers "Events That Touched Our Ancestors' Lives." I went to the website and searched it by state and year. An article came on screen with the headline: "Maryville (sic), MI Deadly Gas Fumes, Dec 1931" and subheads that read "SIX CHILDREN ARE ASPHYXIATED BY GAS STOVE FUMES" and "BODIES OF MCCLURE FAMILY FOUND BY MOTHER ON KITCHEN FLOOR."

The article answered a question that had long lingered in my mind. Who turned on the burners and why? The article revealed that "four-year-old [she was actually three] Phyllis McClure tried to cook a New Year's dinner on her working mother's gas stove for her rag doll."

In reading the article, I learned more. The article explained that based on the position of the bodies Coroner Albert A. Falk believed that Phyllis went into the kitchen, turned on all four gas jets, and then walked to a corner of the room to move her doll—she collapsed in the corner and died there. It was Falk's opinion that most of the children were in the room or came in shortly after Phyllis opened the jets. Martha Earl, described by Aunt Mary as "the little mother of the group," fell next to the gas stove. It appeared that first Shirley Earl and then her older sister Martha had tried to stop the gas flow.

As I read various sources about the children's deaths including the GenDisasters.com article from The Daily News of Huntingdon, Pennsylvania, published on January 1, 1932, it was clear to me that it is impossible to understand the depths of the losses Uncle Steve and Aunt Mary endured. What remains a mystery to me is how they could possibly have coped through the years with a loss of such enormity. What makes it worse is knowing tragedy would shortly find them again.

Tragedy Returns to Claim to Two More McClure Children:
Brothers Push Scooter into On-Coming Traffic

Uncle Steve had two boys from his earlier marriage to Vera Patton. At the time the six children were gassed, Uncle Steve's sons were visiting their mother in St. Clair Township for the Christmas and New Year's holidays. They escaped one tragedy only to walk into another, less than four years later.

Early in the evening of Monday, November 12, 1935, the two boys, Francis Lavon McClure, age 14, and Stephen Verlile McClure Jr., age 11, were playing with a scooter in front of their home on Gratiot Turnpike in Marysville. Somehow the scooter got pushed onto the road and Francis and Stephen were struck by an automobile.

Stephen died on the scene from a crushed abdomen and other internal injuries. Francis who initially survived the crash was taken to Port Huron Hospital with fractured hips, a head injury, and other internal injuries. He died early Tuesday afternoon.

Another Banner Headline

Newspaper coverage of the accident by the Port Huron Times Herald on Tuesday, November 12, 1935, was front-page and part of the banner headline. The first line of the banner read: "HAUPTMANN APPEALS CONVICTION," referring to the convicted kidnapper of the son of aviator Charles Lindbergh. Directly below the Hauptmann headline in italics, the banner read "SIXTH CHILD OF McCLURE FAMILY MEETS VIOLENT DEATH."

The newspaper article goes on to give details about the earlier tragedy the McClure family experienced in the asphyxiation deaths of six children in December 1931. It also identifies the driver of the car as a Detroit resident. At that time—long before I-94—Gratiot Turnpike (US 25) was the main route between Port Huron and Detroit and carried heavy traffic.

Stephen and Francis were buried in Port Huron's Lakeside Cemetery near the other McClure, Stein, and Earl children. With the deaths of the brothers, Uncle Steve had lost four children and Aunt Mary had lost four children. In both tragedies the children were just doing what children do playing— a little girl with her doll and two boys with their scooter. That such innocent activity could turn so deadly makes the tragedies even more sorrowful. Aunt Mary and Uncle Steve would go on to have four more children and raise them successfully. But it seems unlikely that the specter of the deaths of so many children was ever far from their thoughts. It must have taken every bit of their strength and energy to go to work day-in, day-out and to raise their children. I think that is why we never saw much of Aunt Mary and Uncle Steve.

Small gray headstones memorialize the children asphyxiated in the McClure home in 1931, five in the foreground, the sixth child—the oldest—is buried a few feet away in the next row. In 1935 the McClure brothers—killed in a scooter accident—would be laid to rest beside her in the rear row.

Carol (Hunt) Uhal *was born and raised in Port Huron, Michigan. She is a resident of Ypsilanti Township, Michigan and has been a member of the Genealogical Society of Washtenaw County since 2010. Now retired, she worked in public relations and corporate communications. Her next project will be trying to solve the "disappearance" of her two-times great grandfather, Leonard Russel. LOCAL NEWS FROM CHELSEA, MICHIGAN, AUGUST 1866

CHELSEA

Nothing of special interest from this place. Most of its citizens are lost in whortleberry speculations and quarreling with their farmer friends about the tax assessed for putting in a wooden pump on the Avenue de Chelsea, the legality of which assessment non-residents of the corporation seem disposed to test.

Mr. B. J. Tuttle, the proprietor of the Chelsea Hotel, is an obliging host, who spreads a bountiful table, and unlike Chelsea butter is not strong in price.

Ezra Durand, the Dulcimer man, we understand, is carrying on a good business in the manufacture of these instruments.

POLL LISTS, NORTHFIELD TOWNSHIP, WASHTENAW COUNTY, MICHIGAN, 1837

Transcribed by Nancy H. Krohn

Among the earliest extant poll lists for Washtenaw County are two 1837 lists for Northfield Township found in the Washtenaw County, Michigan records at Bentley Historical Library, University of Michigan and are printed courtesy of the library. Michigan achieved statehood on January 26, 1837 and these elections were held later that year. On August 21st and 22nd, representatives to Congress were elected while representatives to the state legislature, state officers and various county officers were elected on November 6th and 7th.

The August list has 120 names and the November list has 110. The poll clerks named on the August poll are Geo. Sutton and James Huston and on the November poll are Rufus Matthews and James Huston. The original lists were ordinally numbered with the given name followed by surname. For ease of searching, the two lists are combined and sorted alphabetically by surname. Spelling remains as found on the original.

Code: AUG.xxx = Poll List August 21 & 22, 1837.ordinal number on original list.
NOV.xxx = Poll List November 6 & 7, 1837.ordinal number on original list.

[The following text was written at the top of the August poll list.]

> "At an Election here at the house of Richard Stackable in the township of Northfield County of Washtenaw State Of Michigan on the 21st and 22nd days of August 1837 for the purpose of election a Member to the Congress of the United of America: John Renwick, Super Robert Shaw T. C. John Keenan Samuel D. Bird & Aron Rosenkrans assessors where qualified as Inspectors and Geo. Sutton & James Huston where now clerks. REV. FRIEDRICH SCHMID'S BAPTISMAL RECORDS, 1833–1874, WASHTENAW COUNTY, MICHIGAN
(Part Twenty)

Translated & transcribed by Rob and Cyndy Steward, 2019

The original records of Rev. Friedrich Schmid are currently housed and may be accessed in The Michigan Historical Collections, Bentley Historical Library, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Please note that the handwriting of Rev. Schmid is not easily deciphered, in part due to his penmanship. The records contain entries written in old German script and some using English script. In addition, the pages in his records are not numbered. It is our understanding that he kept notes as he traveled and then entered them into his record books when he returned home. This may explain that while the records are fairly complete there are some gaps or omissions.

We have maintained the spelling Rev. Schmid used in the case of names. Items enclosed in parentheses are usually comments or notes of the translators or indicate alternate spellings. The term "geb." in relation to a female name, refers to "born as" or maiden name. A "+" at the beginning or end of a line indicates the person is deceased. "Unehl." indicates that the parents were not married to each other at the time of the baptism.

Rev. Schmid's Baptismal Records are in column format as follows:
(Left hand pages – a.) "Chronological Number" of the child for that particular year; Name of Child; Parents Names; Place; Birth Date.
(Right hand pages – b.) Baptismal Date and Place; Sponsors Names (sometimes marital status or relationship of the sponsors are listed).
Columns with no entry or missing information are indicated by three hyphens (---).

[This is the end of the records for the year1862]

Note regarding the entries in the year 1863: Numbers 1–12, Rev. Schmid only listed the year of birth a few times. If not listed, the birth year is shown as (1863), based on the heading at the beginning of the year. However, in January baptisms, when a birth month is prior to January, and no year was listed, we used (1862) as a default since most baptisms tended to be performed before the child was a year old.
